OREGON IN A BOTTLE

Underwood Rosé shows the awesome potential of using an assortment of grapes, mix of vineyards, and the extremes of Oregon's growing regions to create a quaffable pink wine. Inspired by all those secret swimming holes, backyard BBQ's, and lazy porch moments found in the midst of summer, it will become your new favorite lounging staple.

The 2015 vintage started off with a mild winter which caused bud break to occur very early. The early warm temperatures continued, with flowering occurring in late May to early June in most of the state. Similar to 2014, the summer was warm and dry. As we approached what looked to be like an exceptionally early harvest, the weather cooled off as we entered into September and allowed the flavors to catch up with the escalating sugars. The harvest was bountiful and extremely high quality, with the resulting wines showing generous fruit, intense concentration, and great energy reminiscent of the vintage.
